

Exciting News Alert!!

From the end April we are changing our name from Trinity & Leith Chiropractic to Connect Chiropractic.

Why are we doing this? Our new name helps us to bring our two clinics, in Trinity and Leith, together under one banner giving us a stronger identity, as well as enabling us to communicate what we do in a clearer way.

Andrew Feltoe, Principal Chiropractor and Owner says “We have spent a lot of time thinking about this and worked with some great people to get to this stage. We’re really looking forward to communicating what chiropractic is all about to as many people as possible under our new brand.”

We chose the name Connect Chiropractic as chiropractic is all about allowing your nervous system to function better, by improving the connection between your brain and body. We do this by improving the health of your spine through chiropractic treatments. Andrew and the team regularly talk about getting you better connected or reconnected, and it seemed like the name resonated with our ethos.

Although we’re changing our name, in many ways we are still the same. We are still the same award-winning clinics, under the same management, with the same highly experienced and skilled chiropractors (Andrew, Ali and Michael) offering you an outstanding service. We still have the same vision for you – to relieve pain, improve your health, and enhance your life.

We will have a new web address www.connectchiro.co.uk and email address info@connectchiro.co.uk, but for a while you’ll still be able to get in touch with us through our old details.

We know that many people find it hard to understand what chiropractic is all about, and that is a big part of our name change. We hope we can get better at helping our patients and future patients understand the transformational benefits that chiropractic can bring to your life.

Whether you have specific symptoms or want better overall health we can assist you to Connect to your potential.
